

POSITION ANNOUNCEMENT
Assistant Professor of Animal Science

The Hauptert Institute for Agricultural Studies at Huntington University invites applications for a tenure-track position in Animal Science, beginning Fall 2017. The ideal candidate will be passionate about teaching and engaging undergraduate students in experiential learning opportunities such as undergraduate research and/or collegiate judging teams. The successful candidate will teach an array of undergraduate courses in animal science. Expertise in teaching some courses in agricultural education is advantageous. Faculty members are also expected to contribute to student advising and service on University committees.

A doctoral degree in animal science or a related field is required. Doctoral candidates close to completion will be considered—a doctorate is required for receiving tenure. Huntington University is a Christian university and seeks applicants committed to its evangelical Christian mission, faith-learning integration, and liberal arts education.

For more information, please see www.huntington.edu/agriculture

Benefits include TIAA/CREF, medical, life and disability insurance, and traditional undergraduate tuition remission for dependents. Huntington University is an equal opportunity employer. Women and minority candidates are encouraged to apply. The Huntington University faculty application form may be found at:

www.huntington.edu/uploads/documents/Faculty_Application.pdf

A cover letter, curriculum vitae, faculty application form, and the names and contact information for three references should be sent to dean@huntington.edu (email preferred), or mailed to Dr. Michael Wanous, Vice President for Academic Affairs and Dean of the Faculty, Huntington University, 2303 College Avenue, Huntington, IN 46750. Questions about the position may be directed to Dr. Raymie Porter, Director of the Hauptert Institute for Agricultural Studies at rporter@huntington.edu.