

Agriculture Instructor - August 2017 Pratt, Kansas

Full-time, nine-month faculty position starting August 2017.

Pratt Community College's Agriculture Program is strategically focused on enhancing precision agriculture, agribusiness, economic viability, and improving the quality of life within the region.

We seek an innovative—mission driven—Agriculture instructor who is experienced with teaching introductory level agronomy & agribusiness coursework; plant, range, horticulture & soil sciences; crop production, agricultural marketing, economics & agribusiness concepts.

Course loads include both lectures and laboratories related to agronomy & agribusiness curriculum within the Agriculture program framework. The candidate is also expected to develop online or face-to-face courses that enhance the current curriculum and maximize transferability to four year institutions. Student advising/mentoring, training of judging teams, & public service are further expectations for this position. Ideal candidates will be business savvy, have experience teaching, & the ability to foster new and sustain current industry partnerships.

Applicants must have a Master's degree in Agriculture, Agronomy, Agribusiness, and/or other closely related field, doctorate preferred. For information about the Program please visit <http://prattcc.edu/department/agriculture>.
